

Mindy Diamond

Author, Should I Stay or Should I Go?

Founder and CEO, Diamond Consultants

Mindy launched Diamond Consultants in 1998, developing it into one of the leading financial advisor recruiting and consulting firms in the nation—transitioning more than a quarter of a trillion dollars in assets under management in just the past decade alone.

An approach that goes beyond recruiting, Diamond and her team work with advisors years before they're ready to move: educating them on trends, helping evaluate economic models and understand their enterprise value, and creating a roadmap of options they might never have considered.

The goal: That every elite advisor finds exactly the right place for their business and clients to thrive, whether it's at a wirehouse, regional, boutique, or independent firm—ultimately achieving what Diamond calls “Your Best Business Life.”

Additionally, Mindy is considered one of the industry's top thought leaders and is regularly quoted by national media such as The Wall Street Journal, Barron's, The New York Times, and CNBC, and is a guest author on industry publications including WealthManagement.com and Forbes. Her podcast series, “The Diamond Podcast for Financial Advisors,” has become what many consider their “go-to source” for education on the industry landscape.

Learn more...

Should I Stay or Should I Go? The Book on Amazon

Mindy Diamond on LinkedIn

The Diamond Podcast for Financial Advisors

The Diamond Consultants Website